

John White

Tuesday, 03 April 2007

Name:

Role: Community
Ventures

Age: 50

Initially

taken to Love St. at the age of 7 and played in the sand at the Caledonia end while the adults watched the game, taken again at the more mature age of 11 on a regular basis (had outgrown the sand period by then). Earliest match day memory of going to Falkirk in a packed football special from Gilmour St. and Alex Ferguson scoring to knock us out of the Scottish Cup.

Joined

SMISA because I believe in the principle that fans should be encouraged to own shares in the club they support, and I couldn't afford the minimum bulk price of approx £250 at that time. Even though I personally don't own shares I am happy to contribute to the purchase of shares in the club for them to be held collectively for future saints fans to have a stake in St.Mirren. I also think the current custodians of St.Mirren need as much help as possible to ensure the future success of the club (even though they don't realise they need it).

I lead

the sub-committee for community ventures within SMISA and strongly believe in the principle that the club is the community and vice versa, all Saints fans should be striving to ensure the future prosperity, and identity, of both St.Mirren and Paisley and district.

Likes:

the word "fitba", long sleeve strips, Homer Simpson, Lilies day parties, loyal fans, pints of miller, hot cross buns, playin' 5s, pre-match "breakfasts", Janice and Lindsay, my old fiesta (the car not the mag), Depech Mode, Tradition

Hates:

the word "footie" any scot who uses it should be slapped, football pundits who have little knowledge outside the old squirm, reality tv, politics

